

F.D.R. REVEALS:

Allied Attack in Africa Made as Alternative to Frontal Smash on Europe

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(CP)—The high military command of the United Nations decided upon the North African offensive in 1942 as an alternative to a full-scale frontal attack on western Europe next year, President Roosevelt disclosed yesterday.

Italy Ponders Possibility of Allied Attack

ROME, (From Italian Broadcasts), Nov. 11.—(AP)—Virginia Gayda, editor who often expresses the view of Mussolini, speculated yesterday that the prospects of an invasion of Italy by United Nations' forces gathering in Africa.

In an editorial in the Giornale d'Italia Gayda said the "situation is hard" but he assured his readers that any effort to get at Europe through Italy is doomed to failure.

PREDICTS FAILURE

"Whatever may happen in Italy they (the United Nations) will find their heads broken by an invasion of what they call 'Hitler's Europe' through the back door," Gayda wrote. "The Mediterranean may be dominated not only from the African north shore, but from the Italian peninsula, and islands bar way. Italians are far from being disarmed or broken."

"The world war has entered a new phase which has its centre on the Mediterranean, and the Italian people are called upon to face new trials."

"The situation is hard, but resources and the will to fight have never been greater. The United Nations have committed many errors, and may commit a fatal one if they follow the over-optimistic and persist in their insulting behavior toward the Italian people."

Today's War Moves

planned in advance but done on the spur of the moment, born of necessity.

The Tunisian move seems designed primarily to help the advancing Americans and help save the remnants of Marshal Erwin Rommel's shattered Afrika Korps from Libya.

Uffler also fears some forlorn hope of saving Birmei, the powerful French naval base in Tunisia, which in Allied hands would be a dire menace to Sicily and the coast of continental Italy.

The American forces are reported to have crossed the Tunisian frontier with President Roosevelt's announcement that they intended to do so, and the first direct clash between German and American forces is imminent.

HITLER'S PROBLEM

The co-incident Italian occupation of French Corsica apparently is designed to protect Italy's northwestern flank from invasion rather than a move toward Africa, since the Axis already is established in Italian Sardinia to the south.

Hitler's problem is manifest. He no longer is in the position of being able to call the play and force the Allies on the defensive at the spot he chooses.

Hitler was forced to march into southern France and will have to improve coastal defenses. He has little chance of matching the powerful fortifications of the northwestern French and Belgian coasts if the Allies are ready to attack. If they do select France for the next phase of the second front, Hitler's problem will not end there, however. The Allies have freedom of choice and do not have to attack through France, Sicily and Italy like invading armies from the Peninsula, through Greece and Yugoslavia.

WIDE DISPERSAL

If all possible points for an Allied invasion of southern Europe are to be protected, it means wide dispersal of the Axis forces and consequent lessening of the power to resist.

If Italy is to be defended, Hitler will be obliged to come to the aid of the Italians. That would require diversion of heavy forces to guard the Italian coast from the Plains of Lombardy to the southern shore of Sicily. It could be done without dangerously thinning other fronts, notably Russia.

Another problem Hitler has brought upon himself is the reaction of the French fighting forces, land and seas to the occupation of the whole of France. There is some prospect that the French troops in all North Africa may swing to the Allied side, now that they have not even heard of Vichy Government for leadership. The navy, too, will follow Darlan if he changes allegiances. The section of the French fleet which is at Toulon is a question mark.

Even if Hitler gets his hands on the ships, there is the business of manning them. The crews are great against their French crews fighting willingly for Hitler.

9,700,000 Men To Be Enlisted In U.S. Forces

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, saying that something must be done about the manpower situation, announced today that the United States in the next two or three weeks, disclosed yesterday, will be enlisting about 9,700,000 men by the end of 1943.

Between now and that time, he said at a press conference, the United States must find 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 more men—the best young manhood—for the service. Simultaneously, he added, it must find men to take care of the food problem and industrial production, which is still short of the peak.

As the President put it, he and his cabinet are "in a bind" over the manpower situation. He said that the United States must find 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 more men—the best young manhood—for the service. Simultaneously, he added, it must find men to take care of the food problem and industrial production, which is still short of the peak.

Replies to question: His statement came in response to a question whether he favored transferring the selective service system to the war manpower commission, a recommendation by the management-labor policy committee of W.M.C. He said, all parts of the manpower question. He had been devoting a lot of time to that problem. There was no immediate emergency, but something must be done in two or three weeks.

As for the armed forces, there now are he said about 4,500,000 in the army, which is growing to about 7,000,000 by Jan. 1, 1944. Meanwhile, the navy's present 1,000,000 men grow to 1,500,000, and the marine corps and coast guard must be increased from 400,000 to 700,000.

The manpower commission's management-labor policy committee had earlier issued a report favoring the voluntary system of conscription, system of obtaining men from industry and farms, and there were indications that the administration was in agreement.

Home Town Fete Toughest Time For Ace Pilot

By JACK BRAYLEY

VERMONT, Que., Nov. 11.—(CP)—A lean, blond youngster with ribbons on his chest denoting cool courage, squirmed and twisted here last night as his home town paid him a tribute tribute. He slammered over a few "thank you" words, and then he was all over old news again "never been so shaky" and "that's my worst experience."

"And to think that nervous guy is the boy who shot down 29 enemy planes," said a stunned cameraman watching P.O. George Beurling, D.S.O., D.F.C., D.F.M. and Bar, alternate between pulling at the back of his collar and scratching his nose.

PUBLIC RECEPTION

The public reception in the big auditorium here last night climaxed a tough 24 hour schedule that started with his arrival from overseas at Ottawa, Monday night, included receptions, press interviews, radio sessions, dinners and a ball game.

Unfavorable weather failed to keep large crowds from lining the parade route along the whole 2½ miles from the city square to the airport here. He waved from his home he was greeted by representatives of three armed forces, service bands and a Mounted Police escort. He received applause all along the route.

Beurling, responding to demands that he speak at the reception, said "I'm not here for a fighter pilot." He said when he started home he was a "flying ace" and didn't expect to meet all this and that all I didn't expect to have to make a speech.

HEAVY ATTACK R.A.F. Pounds Le Havre Docks

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(CP)—R.A.F. Boston medium bombers plastered Le Havre docks for the second successive day yesterday in keeping up round-the-clock bombing raids on Germany and Nazi-occupied Europe.

Two hundred Spitfires, including R.C.A.F. squadrons, protected the Boston raiders from the sea. Bombers from Cherbourg to Hecamp, with cannon and machine-gun fire. The fighters penetrated several hundred miles inland over the English Channel.

The air ministry news service said the German air force did not retaliate. "I got away from R.C.A.F. pilots managed to find a fight with the Nazis while escorting the Boston raiders from the sea. Veterans' Guard To Be Increased

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Defence headquarters announced last night that the Veterans' Guard will be increased and those serving outside Canada in such places as the United Kingdom, Newfoundland and the West Indies will be relieved periodically by their counterparts serving at home, the announcement said.

This new policy permits veterans of the First Great War to join the guard to take turns in serving with overseas detachments, relieving other veterans at intervals of from six months to a year.

The Veterans' Guard now is actively recruiting men for its ranks and is eligible for enlistment, applicants must have served in the European armed forces during the First Great War, and may be up to 35 years of age.

Butter Rationing May Be Started If Stocks Drop

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—(CP)—The race between increasing butter production and declining stocks in storage was close last night, with Canadian consumers anxiously awaiting the outcome.

If the rising output of butter fails to keep pace with consumption and stocks have to be drawn down heavily, rationing to ensure equitable distribution of available supplies is considered a possibility.

Earlier yesterday a R.A.F. combat officer, flying a Spitfire, examined the latest Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports on butter production and stocks on hand and on the northeast coast of Scotland.

"I fired a burst and hit the other plane," said Hudson. "He raced away to sea after the attack. Bombs 'straddled' the Haver harbor and a passenger station and the quay between the inner and outer harbors, one returning pilot said."

Vitamin D—also called "The Sunshine Vitamin"—is the vitamin most familiar to the public, as it has been widely publicized both in articles and advertisements.

Vitamin D may be obtained in different ways. It can be obtained from food taken through the mouth or absorbed through the skin. In the ultra violet rays in sunlight, the sun is not available as a source of treatment.

When the body is exposed to the ultra violet ray lamp or to the sun, the body manufactures vitamin D for itself following ultra violet ray treatment. Exposure to the sun because ergosterol is present in the skin. Foods containing ergosterol can be made to contain vitamin D by being irradiated with ultra violet rays.

Vitamin D enables the body to use calcium and phosphorus in building strong bones and teeth, is essential for growth in children, and is especially one of the vital factors in preserving well-being at all ages.

When there is an insufficiency of the vitamins such conditions as rickets, faulty formation of the jaw, and rickets will result. In the case of a mild lack of vitamin D, the growing period, the child may not develop rickets but may develop other symptoms. The bones may not form correctly and thus will be softened. The jaw and skull will be deformed which will spoil the attractiveness of the mouth. The teeth will suffer, the enamel, dentine, being thin and the teeth showing a tendency to early decay.

On the other hand, when plenty of calcium is supplied together with vitamin D during the growing period the bones and teeth develop normally. The jaw bones are large enough to accommodate the teeth without crowding and the teeth are evenly placed and are strong and white. The enamel and dentine are well developed.

Vitamin D is present in egg yolk, butter, cod liver oil, herring, sardines, and salmon. It is also present in irradiated foods or vitamins. The body can produce vitamin D and bread are examples.

Easy to Lose 2 Pounds a Week! Mrs. Plump declares war on surplus pounds.

Good general that she is, she starts her campaign with an appetizing liquid diet that cleanses her system, perks up her appetite for the beautiful low-calorie meals to follow.

Her strategy includes arranging housework and social activities so she can take things easy until she's back on solid food.

Then she settles down to a refreshing 3-day regime of fruit juices—orange, pineapple, grapefruit, tomato, prune—no tea and coffee during these first 3 days.

Next come several weeks of delicious, energy-giving meals like this typical dinner of only 485 calories: 2 broiled lamb chops (lean), ½ cup string beans, 1 teaspoon butter, ½ white potato, lettuce salad, 1 teaspoon French dressing, 1 canned peach, tea with lemon.

No need for starved, dragged-out days when you reduce the modern.

By DOROTHY DIX:

Woman's "No" Must Be Interpreted

Word May Mean Anything; Half of World's Heart-breaks Come Because Men Can't Understand

Fair Sex

A boy who says he is in distress—and how—asks me:

"What line of conduct do girls like in boys? How do girls want boys to treat them? Do they crave little maidling, or prefer to be handled with gloves? If I step a girl out and offer a little petting, maybe she will say 'no,' but if I take her to a new house and make no further advances she will date me again because she says 'I'm slow.' If I am persistent in teasing an girl for a kiss when she says 'no,' she calls me fat and won't give me another date. How, Miss Dix, can we boys tell what a girl means when she says 'no.' Is there any secret way of reading their minds? What does the female species want, anyway?"

Well, son, few female mind works, its wonders to perform is a mystery that makes the riddle of the Sphinx more like a conundrum than any maven could guess without strain to his mind. But millions of men, from Adam down, have wrestled with the problem without ever finding out how the darn thing functions.

And especially has no one ever discovered just what a woman means when she says "no," for sometimes she means "yes," and sometimes she doesn't, and which interpretation to put upon it is not only almost impossible, but often disastrous. For nothing infuriates a woman more, or brands a man as a fool, than to see her eyes, than for him to accept her turn-down as final, when she only wanted to be teased. For, you see, with the fair and devious sex "no" is not always negative, it is just as often a common. It is like a waving hand or a fluttering veil that beckons the adventurer on his quest. It is a shield of conventionality behind which a girl hides when she doesn't want to be thought too easy or too anxious, she expects a man to have gumption enough to see through her "no-mans," and to steal the kiss she refuses.

What To Do

So, son, consider all the collateral evidence when you are trying to decide what a girl's "no" means. If she snuggles up to you when she says "no," she never gets her mouth in easy reaching distance, you are justified in concluding that her "no" means "yes" and that she is not averse to a little petting. But, if, on the other hand, she keeps herself out of your reach when she says "no," it is flat and final, and you had just as well return her to the bright lights in the bedroom and begin a discussion about how long the war is likely to last, and what she thinks of the President's fiscal policy.

When you ask how girls want to be treated, you touch on not only one of the major problems of life, but also on the source of its greatest tragedy, because half of the heartbreak and sorrow of the world comes from men never understanding how women want to be treated, and thus blundering into making their sweethearts and wives miserable when they are working themselves to death to try to make them happy.

Many a man, for instance, is an old bachelor because he failed to woo the only woman he ever loved or wanted for a wife in the way she wanted to be courted. He was a matter of fact, prosaic man, with a heart filled with the kind of devotion that keeps a wife on her knees thanking God for her luck in getting him, but he didn't understand the low-calory way.

In our 32-page booklet, an expert dietitian gives "liquid diet," 42 tasty and healthful reducing menus. Has a color chart for everyday foods; also tells how to gain.

McKenney

On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

Women carried away most of the honors at the fall session of the last tournament at Richmond last year. The open pair championship was won by Mr. C. C. Young and Sidney Sidor of Philadelphia.

Hands are the symbols of your activities. In wartime 10-o-logs are out. Fingernails can be shorter yet beautiful. Wear your nails to 1½ of an inch in length beyond the tips of the fingers. Your choice of polish is your own but the trend is towards the soft rose-reds.

Simon Ward of Atlantic, Ga., and Mrs. A. Sobel of New York, teamed with Pvt. Simon Rosant and Peter Leventritt of New York. All of these championships will defend their titles at Syracuse, N.Y., the week of Nov. 20 with the possible exception of Pvt. Rosant.

Here is an interesting hand that helped Rosant win last year's championship. Rosant's no trump bids were made, of course, because of the vulnerability situation. When his two no trump was doubled, he decided to sit tight and hope to get his seven club tricks in.

As it happened, East thought that North might have a spade stopper, and decided to try to stopper a surprise with the heart lead. Instead, he handed Rosant the contract at once. The discovery that they had a bid-down game in spades was a bitter blow to East and West.

"Book of Remembrance" Honoring Nation's Dead Will Rest in Peace Tower

Canada Pays Homage to Fighting Sons Who First Halted German Hordes

Twenty-four years ago the people of Canada rejoiced to the news that Germany had signed an armistice, that the Great War was ended. For nearly twenty-one years Canadians lived in peace, purchased with the lives of 66,500 heroic sons. Their names are now inscribed in a "Book of Remembrance" which today was placed within the Peace Tower in the Capital of the Nation. Meanwhile, another generation of fighting Canadians marches forth to meet again the old, brutal enemy of 1914-18.

Shown here is the title page of the magnificent "Book of Remembrance". Lieut. Alan Beddoe, R.C.N.V.R., was the artist responsible for the designs and their execution. Col. A. F. Duguid co-operated in selection and arrangement of material.

Here is one of the typical pages of names. They are listed alphabetically by years. It took W. H. Baldwin five years to letter them. Baldwin is now a Flight Lieutenant in the R.C.A.F. A distinguished aviator, he recently won the D.F.C.

The book now rests under glass in a special altar in the Peace Tower. One page will be turned each day of the year. Photostat copy is provided for the public.

Prime Minister King examines the book. Shown with him are Miss Bury and Col. H. C. Osborne, chairman of special committee which had charge of the book's preparation.
